THE HÔTEL SALÉ: AN EXCEPTIONAL SETTING

Located at rue de Thorigny in the Marais district, Aubert de Fontenay's notable 17th century private mansion, commonly known as Hôtel Salé, was chosen, in 1974, to house the monographic museum devoted to the work of Picasso. Since the opening of the institution in 1985, the classified historic monument offers, for the collection of the museum, a prestigious setting bringing together an original combination of classic and baroque architecture, its semicircular courtyard or the central staircase with its splendid sculpted decor.

Between 2009 and 2014, the building was subject to a renovation, modernization, restoration and extension program, under the supervision of French architect Jean-François Bodin. Reconciling the different languages that form the rich heritage of the museum's original architecture, while magnifying the areas displaying the museum's collections. The renovations have enabled the augmentation of the exhibition areas.

THE LARGEST COLLECTION OF PICASSO'S WORKS IN THE WORLD

The Musée national Picasso-Paris collection was put together thanks to two donations, successively allocated to the State through Pablo Picasso's heirs in 1979 and later through Jacqueline Picasso's heirs in 1990.

The large collection contains masterpieces of the 20th century. From his Self-Portrait and La Celestina of his blue period until The Kiss, Large Nudes, Matadors and Musicians of his final years, you can find representations of all Picasso's periods.

Exhibition room

Almost all of the artist's sculpted works are united as well: proto-cubist wood and bronze sculptures, cubist constructions, the series of large plaster Busts of Boisgeloup...

Finally, Picasso's graphic works and engravings are united in an extraordinary collection of nearly 4,000 items that recounts the developments of the research on Picasso.

The works of Picasso's private collection and his archives are certainly additional assets for this monographic museum.
